SENATOR BURROWS MAKES THIS ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY.

BEVERIDGE MAKES SPEECH

Indiana Senator Eloquent in His Demand Illinois Man Be Unseated
by Fellow Members.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Senator Beveridge of Indiana addressed the senate today on the Lorimer case. In the main the speech of Senator Beveridge was a reply to the recent address of Senator Bailey and of the other members of the committee on privileges and elections. Going to the heart of the question Senator Beveridge attacked the validity of the Illinois senator's election. He contended that a sufficient number of members of the Illinois legislature had been tainted to render Lorimer's success the result of corruption and urged the adoption of his resolution vacating the seat.

Urges Action.
The speaker appealed to the senators to regard the case from the standpoint of justice and not to be influenced by their feelings or by the eloquence of other senators.

Vote Tomorrow.

WILL CASE DECIDED IN COUNTY COURT

Petition of John H. Watson Asking
Modification of Judgment of Probate of Father's Will Today Denied.

The application of John H. Watson praying for the modification of the judgment of probate of the last will of his father, the late John Watson, which has been pending in the county court of this county for some weeks, was today denied by Judge Sale, and the petition dismissed.

John Watson's original will was dated June 28, 1900. There were two codicils thereto, they being dated respectively, February 11, 1901; November 21, 1906; July 13, 1907; April 5, 1910, and April 15, 1910, all of which were admitted to probate October 29, 1910.

Mrs. Frank Ayers is one of the beneficiaries under the terms of the original will and the second and third codicils. By the terms of the original will, the store building and lot on West Milwaukee street, occupied by Frank H. Hancock as a clothing store, was devised to John H. Watson. The codicil dated April 5, 1910, revokes this devise, and the property described therein is devised to Frank H. Hancock, in trust for John H. Watson, the net income therefrom to be paid to him during his life, and in the event of his death before that of his wife, to be paid to Mrs. Watson during her life, and after her death, to the heirs of John Watson.

Mrs. Frank Ayers was one of the two witnesses to this codicil. In the petition praying for the modification of the probate of the will, it was claimed that she being a beneficiary under the will and two of the codicils, was an incompetent witness, and therefore being but one other witness, the codicil creating the trust mentioned must be invalid, as there should be two competent attesting witnesses.

The substance of the decision is that Mrs. Ayers, taking nothing by the terms of the last codicil, was a competent witness thereto; that the will as well as each codicil, so far as the execution thereof is concerned, must be regarded as a separate and distinct paper; that the question whether any one codicil is valid or void must be determined independently of the will or other codicils. Even though she had been named as a beneficiary by the terms of the codicil, she would still be a competent witness, although any devise, legacy or gift to her would have been wholly void unless there were two other competent attesting witnesses.

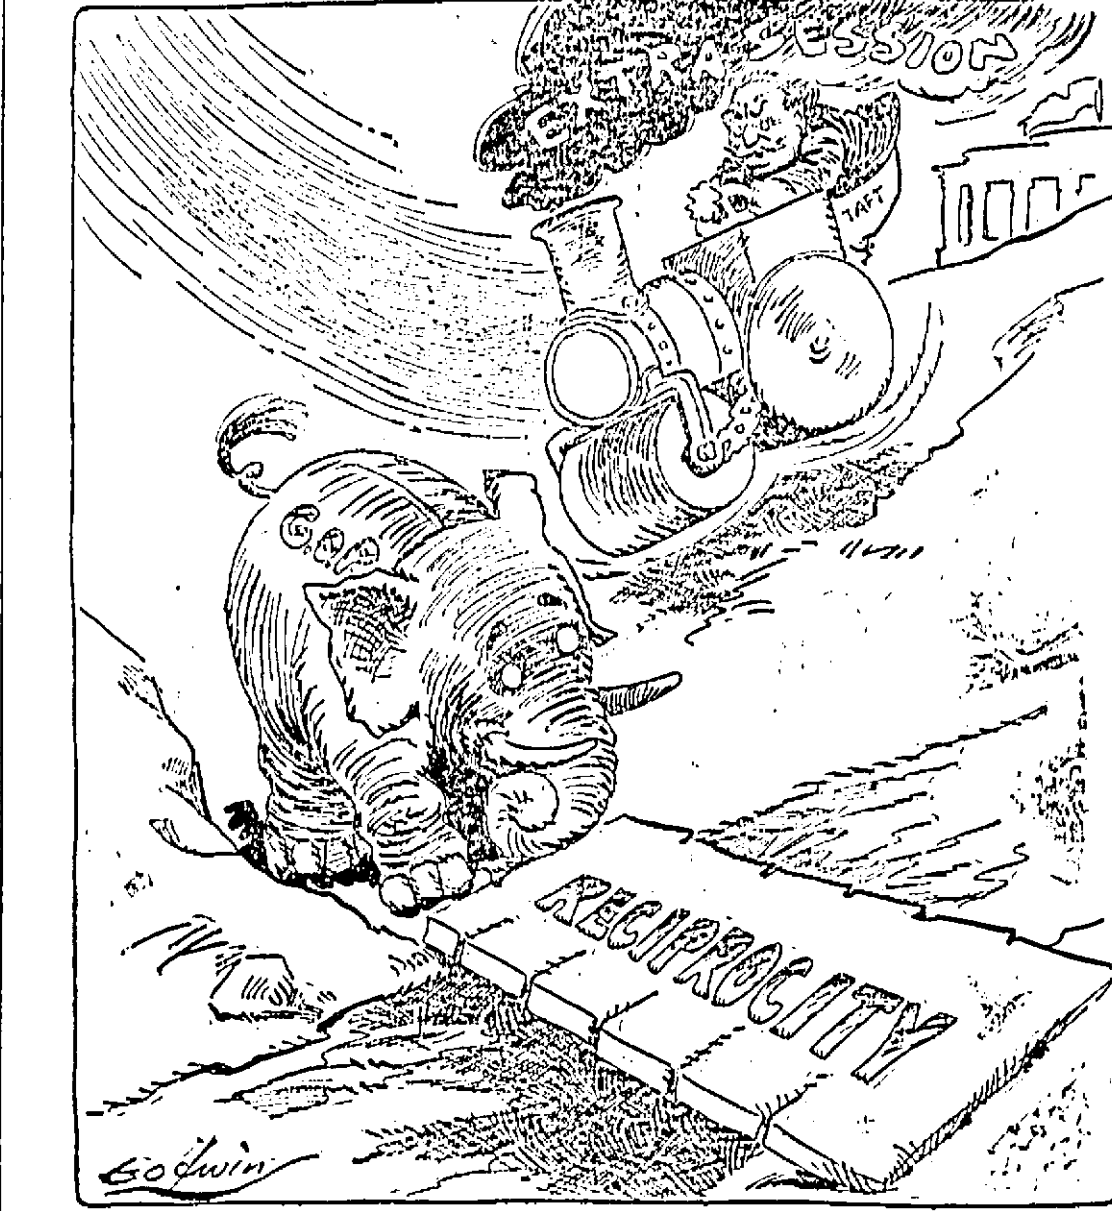

It is not known at this time whether an appeal will be taken or not from the decision of Judge Sale.

Charles H. Pierce was the attorney for John H. Watson, the petitioner. Thos. S. Nolan represented Frank H. Hancock, as executor and trustee.

Konop is entitled to a seat in the national house by a majority of five votes, according to the decision. In a local shoe store one day this week a stout man appeared to be having considerable difficulty in finding just what he wanted. After showing him a dozen or more pairs the salesman blandly observed: "Now, here is a pair that I think will suit you to perfection." OBITUARY.

Mrs. Jane Cantwell.

Shortly after six o'clock this morning death came to Mrs. Jane Cantwell at her home, 508 Pine street. She had been ailing for some six months past and her condition had required a good deal of care on the part of her relatives.

Mrs. Cantwell was born in Kerry, Ireland, May 15, 1843. When she was eleven years of age she came to this country with her parents and they settled almost immediately in Rock County which has been her home since that time. Most of which has been spent in this city. She was a resident of this city for nearly fifty years which was for her a large number of friends who will be grieved to learn of her death. She was a faithful member of St. Patrick's church and was always active in its affairs.

Her husband died some years ago and she is survived by four daughters and one son: Mrs. William Duffin of this city; Mrs. William McGuckey of Beloit; Mrs. Andrew Sonnett of Beloit; Mrs. James Cochrane of this city; and John Cantwell also of this city. She is also survived by a grandson, Freeman Geeser who made his home with her, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Cantwell of Milwaukee.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning at nine o'clock from St. Patrick's church.

Alice Bennett.

At the funeral of Miss Alice Bennett which was held yesterday morning at half past ten from St. Thomas Catholic church at Beloit, high requiem mass was celebrated by Father M. J. Ward assisted by Father Goedel of St. Mary's church of this city and Father Kelley of South Beloit. There was a profusion of floral offerings which testified to the high regard in which she was held by her many friends. The pall bearers were: Edward Tracy, A. F. Ellison, William Tracy, James Dunn, Delbert Gunn and Edw. Duggan.

Bessie Maryatt.

Milton, Junction, Feb. 21.—Miss Bessie Maryatt, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maryatt, died at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents about one mile north of town. She is survived by one brother, Tilden Montclair, who is living in Colorado. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at half past two o'clock from the S. D. H. church.

Patrick Tracy.

The remains of the late Patrick Tracy arrived here this morning at 11:45 from Green Bay and were taken to Mount Olivet cemetery for burial. Funeral services were held this morning at Green Bay. The pall bearers were: John Watson of Fond du Lac; Thomas Jefferson, Martin Graham, John O'Brady, Claude Sloan and John Flannery all of Green Bay. Gliden of Evansville; Thomas and Patrick Tracy of Affton; and Alva Tracy of Leyden.

The "Just So" Type of Worker.

No one can accomplish much in life who must have everything "just so" in order to do his best work. For, with most men and women, the greater part of their life has to be spent under circumstances which are not just as they would like to have them. If they do not even attempt to do their best work except under the most favorable circumstances, this means that the greater part of their life will slip by unimproved. Those workers whose output of large volume and high quality surprises everyone are persons who have rigorously schooled themselves to do their work under any and every condition. So it becomes true that the measure of one's efficiency is largely his ability to do good work under disadvantageous circumstances. The man who cannot work well under such difficulties is putting an enormous limitation upon his output. His life is not going to count for nearly as much as the man's who can marshal his best powers at any time and under any circumstances and put them to work; whose powers are like the horses of the fire station, ready to spring into place, let the harness drop down about them, and be off at an instant's call. The "just so" type of worker wastes years, in a lifetime, that the disciplined, ready-for-harness worker utilizes. It is well to have everything at its best when we can; but it is better to be at our best when everything about us sees: s to be at its worst.

Common-Sense View of Things.

What good is there in having a last venomous sting at a boss who has played the decept? None whatever, except that it may be a temporary relief to your vanity and long smoldering spite.

Why make those other people feel that they are less fortunate than you by repeated emphasis of your fine prospects? All their thoughts are a bragging. All their thoughts are against you in your new position.

This good opinion of a former employer is something not to be ignored; nowadays. No matter what your present prospects exigencies may arise later on where his good will may assist you.

The right way to leave a good position should be an instant when you keep an eye to the future.

COMPELLED TO STOP

"SOMETHING" WARNED ENGINEER TO PUT ON BRAKES.

One More Substantiated Story of Premonition That Saved Train From Disaster—Unable to Make Any Explanation.

Jake Darst is one of the best known and least emotional of all the engineers on the Oklahoma division of the big trunk lines of the southwest, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

He can make the time, and he likes to make it, and nothing makes him more peevish than a useless stop that will cause him to "whip his engine" up and down grade in order to make up the lost minutes. He pulls, with the help of engine No. 1022, the fast train that comes up out of Texas on the stroke of midnight, and runs across the state of Oklahoma by the time the sun is a few degrees above the prairie skyline. He insists with the placid insistence of a big man that he arrived at the end of his run on time. His fireman suffered grievously before the days of the "oil burners" because of this ambition.

They were slowing the telegraph poles behind them at the even rate of 55 miles an hour one summer morning about two years ago. Leaving the junction north of one of their few stops they raced across the outskirts of the Darlington reservation, climbed to the crest of Okarcho Hill and set tied back on either side of the cab to "watch the drivers roll." There was nothing to keep them from tearing off the mileage between Okarcho Hill and the Chummaron river at the rate of 60 miles an hour or upward. Just why he did it, the engineer could never tell, but his hand suddenly shot out, seized the throttle, shut off the steam, and an instant later set the air brakes. The heavy train jarred to a stop, while the fireman looked wonderingly at him from across the cab. Without saying a word, Darst swung down from the cab and ran forward along the track. A few feet away from the engine pilot he saw the crumpled body of a man lying between the rails.

When the train crew came running forward a few moments later the engineer confessed to the little group that "something" had made him stop in spite of the fact that he had not caught sight of the body till he was within a few feet of it. In the meantime a frantic dispatcher was trying to get a message to train No. 12 with the highly important information that the bridge over Dove creek was in bad shape and that speed of all trains would be reduced to 12 miles an hour over that suddenly important culvert. The unusual stop gave him time to receive and forward that message to the now belated train. The train was saved from the consequences of a dilatory track walker's carelessness by the few minutes lost in stopping and picking up the body found on the right of way.

Explaining the "Tips."

Those ghostly "tips" that come out of the dark and are so well known to all railroad men, are explained in various ways by the different cults and schools of the occult. Dreams and forewarnings are placed in the same class by those who argue that there is something supernatural about these occurrences. The scientific gropes through the galleries of the brain, the known and the unknown in search of some clue that will enable him to lay down the laws that govern these weird manifestations of the so-called "sixth sense." He is not satisfied with the evasive answer that it is some supernatural quality that does these things. Literature is full of well-authenticated instances of premonition and forewarning. Every day life is full of it, and it is not at all uncommon to pick up a paper and find that the victim of an accident had told some friend or member of his family that he feared death or injury on that particular day. The records of the various societies that are devoted to the running down of supernatural instances are filled with well-authenticated cases of the sort. War time literature is especially rich in cases of forewarning where men ordinarily untouched by the fear of a battle's chances have spoken to their comrades of the inevitableness of death in the next engagement. So many undoubted cases of premonitory warnings of this sort have occurred that they form a literature all by themselves.

Seal Found on Track.

A peculiar accident occurred in California last week when a young fat and lazy seal basking in the sunshine on the railroad track stopped an incoming train at Los Angeles. At a point where the seal was basking the track was clear and the engineer was able to observe it without running over it. The train was stopped. The engineer and brakeman captured the seal, placed it in the baggage car and brought it to the depot. The animal was found several miles from the nearest water. The railroad officials surmised the seal was carried out to dry land by an extraordinary high tide from the Pacific, and that when the tide went out it was unable to find its way back to the water.

Much in Little.

The little foolery that wise men have makes a great show.—Shakespeare.

Nan and the Bucket.

There is one particular fever of nonsense which the Princeton Tiger claims the credit of having originated, for in the November issue, 1902, appeared the following verse:

There once was a man from Nantucket Who kept all his cash in a bucket, But his daughter, named Nan, Ran away with a man, And as for the bucket—Nantucket.

For the next few months Nan, her father and her newly acquired husband encountered a series of the most astonishing adventures in every known hamlet in the country which could be converted into linerlike form by the brains of newspaper and magazine writers from sea to sea. By the time Nan came back with a dozen or so additional verses tacked on to her torso in reason to wonder in the face of the odds to which she had been subjected whether the peculiar advantage gained by absconding with that bucket repaid her for all that she had been through.—Roy S. Dursline in Bohemian Magazine.

How He Saved Money.

A country politician in Pennsylvania managed to get elected to the legislature at Harrisburg for one term. When he came back he built himself a fine house, costing about $20,000. His old neighbors, who knew he had no money before he went to Harrisburg and who knew the salary of a Pennsylvania legislator, were curious to discover where the returned statesman got means to build the house. So one day a committee waited on the man who built the house, and the spokesman said:

"Jim, it may be none of our business to your thinking, but we think you owe it to us who sent you to the legislature to explain where you got the money with which you built this house. You didn't have a cent before you went to Harrisburg and owed everybody in the place. How about it?"

Feet of the Sea.

The freaks of the sea are the anglers and but fishes. The people of North Carolina have aptly named the angler the almouth, for the tail begins where the mouth ends. Inhabiting the north Atlantic, the angler has been given a variety of names. On the Massachusetts coast it is known as goosefish. Rhode Island terms it bellowshead, and Connecticut gives it the cognomen of molligan. Jamaica bay calls it the carpetbagger. England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales all have their local names. The names of the English give to this one fish are expressive of its habits, to say the least. They call it toothfish, frog, fishing frog, devilfish, sea devil, sawfish, monkfish, pocketfish, widegout, kettlefish and whalegout. Thomas Pennant, who in 1770 wrote his "British Zoology," did not like the name of fishing frog, then applied to the fish, so he changed the old name of fishing frog for the more simple one of angler.

The Way of Humanity.

Human nature is kind and generous, but it is narrow and blind and can only with difficulty conceive anything but what it immediately sees and feels. People would instantly care for others as well as themselves if only they could imagine others as well as themselves. Let a child fall into a river before the roughest man's eyes—he will usually do what he can to get it out, even at some risk to himself, and all the town will triumph in the saving of one little life. Let the same man be shown that hundreds of children are dying of fever for want of some sanitary measures which it will cost him trouble to urge, and he will make no effort, and probably all the town would resist him if he did.—Ruskin.

On the Other Side.

A British soldier out walking with his son saw an old blind beggar with the inscription on his chest, "I Fought at Waterloo."

The soldier said, with deep feeling: "Give him something. He helped to save your country."

The child dropped some silver into the beggar's cap, and the old man gratefully replied: "Merci—bien, monsieur"—London Post.

Housing of Working Girls.

The housing of working girls is a problem that is being much discussed in England, and several books have been written on the subject within the last month. The hotel, or, as they call it in England, "hostel," that they call it in England, and carried on in a business like way, has been suggested, while others would have the home idea predominate and think this comes best from private effort. As the great army of tramps has its counterpart in the women who are submerged in a great city like London it would seem that innocent girls can be better protected where there is some sort of public supervision. The promiscuous lodging house is certainly a great menace in any country to the young girl coming from the country to work in the city.

Eternity in the Heart.

"Thou hast put eternity into the heart." No man can bound his life with the years that pass between birth and death. Even the child feels impulses that were born centuries before his time, and the old man passes out of life nursing hopes and seeing visions that belong to the ages to come. Eternity dwells in every human life.

THEATER

"The Cat and the Fiddle."

The gorgeous musical extravaganza, "The Cat and the Fiddle," which for the past four seasons has been such a remarkable success, will be the attraction at the Myers theatre, Saturday, Feb. 25, matinee and evening.

A company of some forty singers, dancers, comedians, and a large and carefully drilled and beautifully gowned chorus are included. The plot is taken and founded on the favorite old nursery rhyme, "The Cat and the Fiddle," elaborated upon, and worked out by deft theatres and crowded houses at most performances, patrons went there to see, but when the Count finished his offering, he was greeted in every instance with prolonged cheers and applause. In silk hat, English walking coat, striped trousers and gray spats, with pearl buttons, the Count makes his entry followed by his famous English butler, "Fish," the latter carrying a basket of flowers in his mouth. In opening his performance De Beaufort commences with a few remarks and goes into a very clever love song. Invariably after the first number, the

MAKING AN EFFORT

It was in the serene moments after a metaphorical put on the head from the president of the firm of which Kennedy was the branch manager for Chicago, that Kennedy, being at the time in an atmosphere unclouded by domestic complications, suggested that the president's wife, when she came through Chicago on her way east, should pass the night with the Kennedys instead of at a hotel. The president condescendingly approved the suggestion.

On his way home Kennedy began to feel quills. It was not, however, until he had delivered himself of the fateful news and Mrs. Kennedy collapsed upon the nearest chair and gazed at him with moist eyes and the calmness of despair that he realized fully what a catastrophe he had precipitated.

"But she has millions in her own right!" Mrs. Kennedy gasped. "I can't have her here. She'd be so uncomfortable! For I can't have things that she is accustomed to having."

"Let her have them the way we're accustomed to having them, then," said Kennedy, rather truculently.

Mrs. Kennedy gave a little resigned sigh. "When is she coming?" she asked, faintly. "And how long is she going to stay?"

"She won't be here until after dinner tomorrow," Kennedy began. He was interrupted by a hysterical shriek.

"Oh, of course, she'll have to come," Mrs. Kennedy admitted. "Don't worry, dear."

Kennedy's parting instructions to her the next morning were: "Now, don't you go bothering to have things fixed up any different. The old man's a good fellow and I guess his wife won't be so worse."

With a non-committal smile Mrs. Kennedy kissed him goodby, then dashed back into the house, intent upon doing all that mortal woman could to impress the coming guest with the fact that the Kennedy family could not and would not exist in the lap of luxury.

She pulled down curtains in rooms into which the president's wife could not by any possibility have any excuse for prowling. These she persuaded Sarah to wash, while she herself swept and dusted and polished furiously. She bullied the laundry into returning the cherished best tablecloth. From her next-door neighbor and intimate friend she borrowed several small but beautiful Oriental rugs and a handsome silver individual breakfast service, from which Mrs. Turner was destined, while still reposing in bed, to take her morning meal with proper elegance in the splendor and span guest room. When she had borrowed and begged and put in place everything she could think of that might give a touch of artless elegance, she sat down to make out the menu.

"I will have a nice luncheon and a nice dinner," she murmured, biting the end of her pencil. "I'll show her that even if we're not millionaires, we know the right things."

The consequence of this high mental attitude was that she arranged on paper two meals of which Sarah was incapable. "I'll have a caterer," was her prompt decision. She had gone too far to be balked by trifles now. "And I'll have a maid come tonight to do the waiting."

"The next day was eminently successful, if a trifle breathless. By an imperceptible though determined effort, Mrs. Kennedy kept the guest cheering about in an atmosphere of Oriental rugs, heavy silver and cut glass. The luncheon passed off without a hitch. Afternoon tea was served in perfect style. Kennedy, upon his arrival just before dinner, was increased in his dinner coat without a murmur and was a proud object to his wife when the feat was accomplished.

The dinner was really a dream. Relieved of all anxiety as to material things, Mrs. Kennedy, who was an exceptionally good talker, was able to throw herself into the task of providing mental refreshment for her guest. Mrs. Turner beamed, praised and ate with dainty heartiness. Shortly after they left the table she fluttered upstairs, attended by the rented maid, to prepare for her departure.

She fairly radiated joy when she met her hostess at the foot of the stairs when she came down again. She took Mrs. Kennedy's two small hands in hers so tenderly that the action had almost the effect of a caress.

"Ah," she cooed; "I can never tell you what a treat you have given me. I shall never, never forget this day. The simplicity of it is the most wonderful thing I have ever seen. Such simplicity is in itself exquisite beauty. Henceforth I shall make my motto 'Plain living and high thinking,' for you have taught me the meaning of those words."

When Kennedy returned from escorting the too-appreciative guest to the train his wife met him with a face on which there was a broad smile, though it still bore some traces of tears.

"Oh, Jimmie!" she gasped. "Wasn't it awful? And the funny part of it was that she was sincere! She really thought we were letting her take us just as we were. And after the wild efforts I made."

Kennedy looked rather bewildered. "Did you make an effort?" he asked. "I didn't notice anything."

MRS. IRA G. RAWN SUES

STARTS ACTION AGAINST INSURANCE COMPANIES FOR $175,000.

Widow of Ex-Monon Chief Declares She Has Proof Her Husband Was Murdered.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Suits for amounts aggregating $175,000 were brought against nine insurance companies on behalf of Mrs. Florence G. Rawn, widow of Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon system and vice-president of the Illinois Central.

Mrs. Rawn's attorneys say evidence has been obtained to disprove that Rawn's death in his Winnetka home the night of Tuesday, July 10, 1910, was by his own hand. The case will be heard in the fall.

The theory that Rawn was murdered has always been advanced by his family. The suicide theory was maintained by the police, while the coroner's jury returned an open verdict.

The insurance companies refused to make payment on the policies they held on Rawn's life, basing their refusal on the suicide theory and on technicalities written into the policies.

For seven months the matter has hung fire. At various times, Mrs. Rawn's attorneys say, the insurance companies have proffered part of the $175,000 in settlement. Each time anything but the full amount has been declined.

GOOD ROADS.

The Citizens' Business League of Milwaukee has announced a plan for constructing a roadway for automobiles from Chicago to Milwaukee which may ultimately solve the good roads problem in the state. They propose to use the split log drag along the Chicago-Milwaukee highway, that simple method that reduces the cost to practically nothing, and yet gives most excellent results. In discussing the matter Mr. Cannon, secretary of the Milwaukee association, says:

"With the aid of the split log drag, the road to Chicago can be cheaply constructed and maintained. Furthermore, the road can be built and used this coming summer. In Iowa the split log river road was built in three months.

"As a result of the success of this road three others are to be completed in Iowa this year. The building of the road in Wisconsin will in the same way prove an object lesson and farmers will duplicate it in other parts of the state.

"The road from Chicago will be but the first step toward a system which will add millions annually to the income of Wisconsin. The next step will be to build one from Lake to river, through Oconomowoc, Madison and Baraboo to La Crosse. Another will be built up the lake shore, through Sheboygan and Green Bay. Another will reach the elbow of the Fox river valley, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Appleton. Trade will flow along these arteries into both Milwaukee and these other cities.

"Wisconsin can be the great recreation state of the middle west. In the east the New England states serve this purpose, and through them into the Berkshires and the White mountains runs the great ideal tour and many other beautifully kept roads. Colorado is the play state of the Rocky mountain region and California of the west. Middle Wisconsin the states of the middle west are flat prairie land, without the scenery of lakes and hills. If we can give the state good roads we can bring thousands of people and millions of dollars into it.

"And the cost of doing this is small.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

LEST WE FORGET!

"What is there in life for a poor old man who has been a failure? I left my cold room determined to end my life; I was going to throw myself into the lake, but as I crossed the Lake Shore drive I saw a fine automobile full of happy people, and I thought I would throw myself under the wheels and find death."

That was the tragic statement made by George Shepley of Chicago. Mr. Shepley is sixty-three years old and has been without work for some time. Day after day he was compelled to get into the "bread line" to keep from starving.

Becoming morbid over the failure of all his plans to get on in the world, Mr. Shepley started toward the lake. As stated, he changed his mind and threw himself in front of an automobile. By a narrow margin the driver of the machine succeeded in steering the car to one side of the old man's body.

Now—This incident, set down in the newspapers, is merely one of the hundreds which happen in Chicago and in other cities. Old men and young men, old women and young women—even children—daily seek some source of self destruction.

And mostly the despair comes to these unfortunates because of failures to find work and bread.

Note this: In Chicago this winter every effort has been made to raise a fund of $200,000 for the help of the starving poor. The Associated Charities says that sum will fall far short of the needs of the time.

Months—It is estimated that Chicago people spent in "celebrating" the coming in of the new year as much as half a million dollars.

Many millions, of course, were spent for Christmas, but at least half a million was expended for drinks, decoration and music—mostly drinks—between the evening of Dec. 31 and the morning of Jan. 1.

Two hundred thousand dollars for charity in one whole winter! Five hundred thousand dollars in one night for entertainment!

And Chicago is typical of other cities.

Ever and ever do the George Shepleys hunt the lake and the cathartic field way, hoping that by the killing of their bodies they can ease their minds, and the joy seeking sensualists stupefy their minds that they may enjoy the pleasures of the body.

O Lord of hosts, be with us yet. Lest we forget, lest we forget!

A COMMUNICATION

Editor Gazette:

Why is it that every change in our laws is always in the direction of higher taxes and never to lessen the cost of government.

Take for instance our jury commission. Are our juries any better than they were under the old system? Certainly not.

Under the old system the chairman of each town sent a list of names taken from the last poll list. The supervisors of each town knew the qualifications of its voters better than any three jury commissioners possibly can and when they looked over the list and selected the names certainly no commission could make any improvement. But the system was expensive. It cost the county nothing. Probably that was the reason for the change. Our jury commission cost the county $25 the past year—not a very large sum, but take the state over, it amounts to considerable and just so much money taken from the tax-payers for nothing.

And again, who need be there for a supervisor of assessments? And how does it help the tax-payer. Our taxes keep going higher and higher each year and this makes an additional burden. There is talk of commissions for this and a commission for that, always at enormous salaries. Our legislature seems to think it is their duty to provide offices for disappointed candidates and broken-down politicians as does our worthy President take care of the stand-patters left out at the last election. The less officers we have and at reasonable salaries, the better.

If the salaries had been anywhere within reason, say $2,000 for mayor and $1,500 each for the others, possibly we might have had a commission form of government for Janesville.

It is not always the best men that are looking for the highest salaries. We have men today doing as much work and with as great responsibilities for less than $1,500.

Respectfully,
ECONOMY.

"What did you get the rubber gloves for?" they asked her as she passed them around to show how handsome they were. "You have a girl, haven't you? You don't have to wash the dishes."

"No," she answered, "I don't have to wash the dishes, but while she is washing the dishes, I oil the floors."

A NECESSITY— NOT A LUXURY

Don't make the mistake of chasing dental work on your teeth as a luxury. It's a necessity for the prolonging of your life, and the maintenance of your health.

You may go on having a care-free life, letting your teeth go, and losing a tooth now and then, but there's a time coming fast on your trail, when you will have to answer seriously for your neglect.

I see every day in my office someone who bemoans his foolishness in letting his teeth go to pieces.

Pain is not a poor substitute for what nature gave us.

I make bushels of them, but I don't recommend them to anybody who can possibly keep their own natural teeth.

Avoid trouble, and have your teeth put in order.

CHICAGO CARDINALS

LAKOTA CARDINALS

Wednesday Eve., Feb. 22.

Full Imperial Band.

The Wrath of Carlyle and Kingsley. Both writers—and this is one of their most serious offenses—are contemptuous and abusive towards their adversaries far beyond the limits of taste, decency or gentlemanly usage. Both indulge in terms of scorn and vituperation such as no such can justify and no correct or Christian feeling could inspire. Their pages often read like the paragraphs in the communication service. Their holy wrath is poured out, as from teeming and exhaustless fountains, on everything they disapprove of and on everyone who ventures to differ from them or to argue with them. Since the days of Dean Swift and Johnson, there have been no such offenders among the literary men of England. Still, even here, there is a difference; Mr. Carlyle eludes like a blasphemous pagan, Mr. Kingsley like a denouncing prophet.—Grogg, "Literary and Social Judgment."

Patti and the Burglars. Mr. Kuhse has a remarkable collection of autograph letters from notable people, and among them is one from Mme. Patti which relates to a visit paid by burglars to Craig's No. 1. It contains the following: "I suppose the wretches heard that I had jewels and diamonds and imagined that I left them about loose in the house, always hanging up a few diamond necklaces in the hall with my hat and coat! However, it was an inspiration on my part, going upstairs just at that moment, and whilst in the corridor I began singing, which made them believe I was going into the room they were in, and consequently frightened them away. I knew my voice had done a great deal for me, but never expected it would save our house from being robbed."

Record of Bad Luck. The story of a barque's run of bad luck was told recently at Liverpool when four members of the crew of the Annerley arrived home. The vessel left England about four years ago for San Francisco, but had weather interfered with the arrangement. In addition to which the captain died. She did not reach her destination until 12 months had elapsed, and then she went to Australia. Sailing from there she again met with bad weather, her new captain being washed overboard and drowned. She arrived at Queenstown with 2,400 tons of grain on board, and it was after leaving there that the final disaster occurred. She struck the South rock, the crew, who consisted chiefly of Norwegians, boarding a life boat. They were picked up by a tug off Wexford.

The Difference. Some girls are said to be worth their weight in gold, but some others are not worth their weight in the food they waste in trying to cook it.

MAN WHO ROBBED POOR BOXES HERE GIVEN THREE YEARS

Caught in Milwaukee and Sentenced to Waupun for His Crime Today.

Ray Thorne, aged twenty-five, who was arrested in Milwaukee for robbing the poor boxes at several Catholic churches, and who was later identified as the same man who robbed the poor boxes at St. Patrick's and St. Mary's churches here a year ago, was today sentenced to three years in Waupun by Judge Backus in the Milwaukee municipal court. The court gave the young man a long lecture on his crime and said the sentence was for his own good. He may be arrested on the charge from Janesville when released from state's prison.

CASE BEFORE JUDGE TALLMAN ADJOURNED

Suit of Miss Lillian Decker Against the Recorder Printing Company Put Off One Week.

The case of Lillian Decker against the Recorder Printing company which was to be heard before Justice of the Peace Tallman this morning and in which the plaintiff is seeking damages in the matter of alleged failure of the newspaper to grant her trip to Bermuda Islands which she claims she won in the recent voting contest was adjourned one week from today. W. H. Daugherty, counsel for the plaintiff, filed his complaint this morning and also at his request, it may be a jury trial. In the complaint, Miss Decker asks for $200.00 damages in the form of a reward due her, which she alleges she failed to receive. The complaint also alleges that either through carelessness, neglect or fraud, that the votes were so counted as to deprive her of a place among the four winners, a place which was rightfully obtained by her. Another point touched upon was the alleged fact that the introduction of another contestant into her district was not right and was the cause of her not winning the prize offered.

THIRTY LODGERS IN LOCK-UP ON SUNDAY

Record For Season Was Made When Sudden Change of Weather Drove Wanderers To Shelter.

Thirty lodgers sought refuge from the cold windy weather in the city lock-up on Sunday night, establishing the record for the season for the number of men given shelter during the winter. All ages of men were represented in the list of guests and all were in various stages of destitution, finding the outdoors too cool a place for the greater share of them with their scanty clothing. One poor fellow who asked lodging appeared to be almost exhausted and said he "gessed he had a night's sleep in some warm place coming to him," as he had that day walked to this city from Jefferson, a distance of about thirty miles.

The professional hobo is a type seldom seen in the men who ask to sleep in the city lock-up. That class generally keep as far from the police as possible. The men who have "lost their grip," the victims of habit, perhaps, who once prosperous, have gone down and now seek out only a mongro existence as best they can, the "homeless," who in summer with plenty of work are "flush" and spend all they can earn, knowing well enough that they will need all they can scrape together to live in the winter.

This latter class predominates in the spring just before the time for the big tent shows to start out on their season's tour. Baraboo, where the Hocking Bros. put their chums in winter quarters, is generally the Mecca of these men.

Other occupations are also represented, tradesmen, mechanics, printers, tailors, painters and nearly every line of work in which men can engage.

They generally begin to arrive at police headquarters just after dark and from then on up until nine or ten o'clock. Their requests for "a place to sleep" are generally spoken very humbly to those from whom they seek the privilege. If so it may be called, of sleeping on the cement floor of the corridor of the lock-up.

One of the characters who appears periodically at the station is a man known as "Bulldog Dan," a blacksmith by trade. Dan always has money in his pockets whenever he comes, but has become so accustomed to sleeping in such places that the softer beds that he could procure at a hotel do not appeal to him.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS AT BELOIT TONIGHT

Large Crowd of Supporters Will Go With First and Second Basket Ball Teams To Beloit.

Two special interurban cars will carry nearly a hundred and fifty high school students to Beloit this evening where they will cheer the first and second basket ball teams to victory in the contests with Beloit high school.

"The game tonight is an important one," said coach T. M. Knudson today, "and it will decide whether Janesville or Beloit will go to the Lawrence tournament." The Janesville players have been practicing hard every night for the past week and are in fighting trim for tonight's games. Their recent practice of last week with the Beloit college team did much for them in the way of hints as to their weak points.

The team's improvements since the first game of the season with Beloit has been marked," said coach Knudson, "and prospects to win this evening are good." It is something of a disappointment that to the Janesville boys that the games will not be played on the floor of the college gymnasium, but tardiness of action on the part of the Beloit management is given as the cause for this.

The men who will play tonight on the Janesville teams will be:

RHETORICAL WORK OF THE YEAR BEGINS

Second of Regular Weekly Exercises in Extemporaneous Work Was Held At High School Today.

Regular rhetorical exercises for the winter have been started at the high school and the second of the series were held today and several seriously imported. A new plan has been instituted in this matter which is being tried for the first time this year. Instead of assigning a list of subjects to the students all of which are to be prepared for the exercises, each student is allowed to choose his own topic which must be handed in to the teacher of his section at least two days before the date of the program. In this way each student may take a question which he is of especial interest personally and can prepare a more finished speech. Topics which may be taken are confined to the sphere of current events.

An exception to this plan is made in the case of the first year students who deal with the stories of Greek mythology.

Gave Patriotic Address. Prof. West gave a patriotic talk on Washington at the opening exercises of the high school this morning. He emphasized the many virtues of great general and statesman and brought out the many reasons why the anniversary of his birth should be so widely celebrated.

DIAZ' IRON GRIP BECOMING WEAKER

Limantour Is Out for More Liberal Rule.

REFORMS TO FOLLOW PEACE

Mexican Minister of Finance Proposes Terms for the Ending of Revolution in the Central American Republic.

Paris, Feb. 21.—Indications of a loosening of the iron grip of Porfirio Diaz on Mexico and the coming of more liberal rule for the republic as results of the revolution are seen here in an interview given by Jose Ives Limantour, minister of finance in the Mexican cabinet.

The government, says Senor Limantour, should grant a reform of the evils that led to the insurrection. As an essential preliminary to peace he demands that the insurgents lay down their arms pending negotiations.

Importance is given to these declarations by the fact that Senor Limantour has an international reputation as one of the ablest statesmen of Mexico and that he always has been a staunch supporter of Diaz. His change of front is taken to mean that a progressive section of the ruling class has come to a realization of the necessity of relaxing the rigid governmental system of the nation to meet popular demands.

Remedy Abuse; Open the Land.

The minister made three significant suggestions as to the evils in his country:

1. The abuses contaminating local administrations in the cities and towns which have the greatest grievances should be immediately abolished.

2. Some means should be found to allow the people to share more extensively in the holdings of land. The vast estates in northern Mexico which have been handed down from generation to generation by individuals should be divided and distributed among the people. Mexico has worn out the feudal system, which is a relic of the days of Cortez.

3. There is opposition to President Diaz on the ground that he has been too long in office and that new blood is needed to direct the affairs of the republic. But Diaz was legally returned to the presidency by the people.

Whether or not this last suggestion contains a hint of endorsement of the opposition to Diaz was not made clear.

"Federalists No Match for Cowboys."

Should the insurgents fail to adopt the advice to return to their homes pending the initiation of negotiations with the government, Senator Limantour foresees the likelihood of a protracted and wasting struggle, for he says the federal forces are no match for the cowboy insurgents, whose nimble-footed ponies easily escape from the ravines and mountain fastnesses.

Accordingly he recommends the deliberate formation of guerrilla bands by the government for the purpose of combating the insurgents on their own conditions.

For himself, the minister said that he had no political ambitions, though he had been frequently urged to contest the presidency with President Diaz. He expects to start home within two weeks.

Rebels Reported Routed.

Mexico City, Feb. 21.—A newspaper published a report to the effect that in an encounter between revolutionists led by Enrique Flores Magón and a force under General Navarro, near Guadalupe, more than ninety rebels were killed and many wounded. No mention was made of federal losses.

The fighting was said to have continued all morning, the rebels retreating when they found themselves nearly surrounded by Navarro's men. No confirmation of the news was to be had.

South Dakotan Found Dead in Bed With Butcher Knife Stuck Through Heart.

Aberdeen, S. D., Feb. 21.—Because her husband was found dead in bed with a butcher knife stuck through his heart after two days of happy wedded bliss, the wife of Phillip Kralmer, aged thirty-five, living four miles from Hecla, S. D., was arrested and accused of the murder. The girl is but twenty-four and it is inferred that disagreements between the two because of the difference in their ages had something to do with the crime.

Hardware Dealers at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 21.—The Iowa Retail Hardware association opened its annual convention here today with an address of welcome by E. T. Meredith of the Commercial club and a response and annual address by President L. C. Abbott of Marshalltown. More than 400 members of the association are in attendance, and many visitors from adjoining states are here. A very complete exhibit of hardware manufactures has been installed in the Coliseum.

Peary Plan Shut Off.

Washington, Feb. 21.—An attempt to obtain consideration for the bill to make Robert E. Peary a rear admiral failed in the house while private bills were being considered.

Making His First Mark.

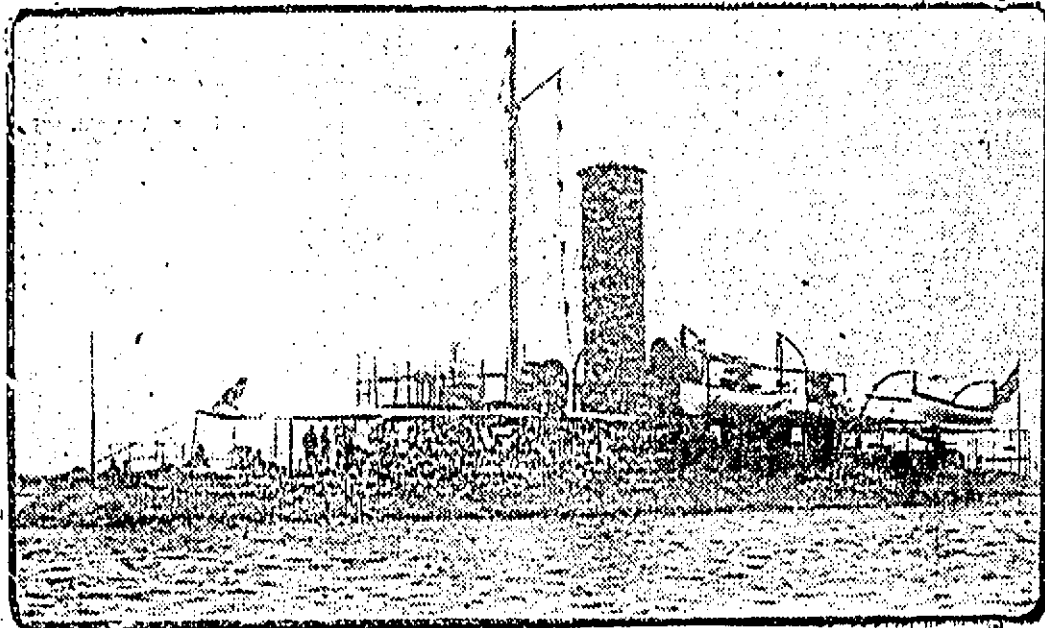

"Well, young Doctor Slicer has made his mark already, hasn't he?" "Yes—did it on his first case." "Great work! What did he do?" "Vaccinated him."

CHAS. K. HAMILTON, THE FIRST AVIATOR TO TRY OUT AIRSHIP IN ACTUAL WAR.

El Paso, Tex.—Charles K. Hamilton holds the distinction of being the first aviator to test out the value of an airship for scouting purposes in time of actual war.

The test was made February 10 in spite of warning that he might be fired on by Mexican federal troops. He flew across the border into Mexico, circled the defenses at Juarez and returned to the American side of the river. His experiment proved that the airship is of incalculable value as a scout if not in fighting the enemy.

WILL FIRE ON KATAHDIN—The ram Katahdin, to be used as target to test the effect of 12-inch shells.

Washington, D. C.—The monitor Tallahassee has left here for St. Mary's, on the lower Potomac river, where she will fire her big 12-inch naval service shells loaded with high explosives. The target is composed of 12-inch nickel steel Krupp armor supported on a structure which will be from five to seven miles distant from the Tallahassee.

The test is for the purpose of affording a comparison between the damage inflicted on the monitor Puritan by the high-power charges recently exploded against her turret and side, and that which can be wrought upon the armor of the modern battleship by the ordinary naval service shell. It will be witnessed by a party of congressmen on the torpedo boat Halley.

MEN WHO WILL DRAFT THE NEXT TARIFF. Members of the ways and means committee of the next congress. In the group are Representatives O. W. Underwood, F. B. Harrison, C. B. Randall, W. G. B. Brantley, Ollie James, D. W. Shackelford, Claude Kitchin, H. T. Rainey, A. J. Peters, Lincoln Dixon, Cordell Hull, William Hughes, A. H. Palmer and W. S. Hammond.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

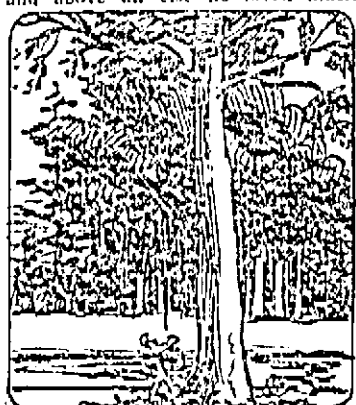

How the Nightingale Learned to Sing

THE brook in the heart of the woodland rippled merrily along over its rocky bed. The great green canopy of the trees above swayed lazily in the gentle breeze. A rabbit poked his nose from out the lower growing things nearby; then hopped out into view.

He paused a moment then suddenly leaped the brook and disappeared within the opposite thicket. The whirr of bird wings sounded overhead, but the sound was lost in the distance as the birds flew on.

And then from out the depths of the wood there came a nightingale. He had traveled far and he was tired. He spread wide his wings and settled down on a maple tree, whose branches hung well over the swiftly rushing waters of the brook. Another passing bird opened his throat as he passed and sang a few beautiful notes of some song.

On he went and the nightingale filled with sorrow, hung his head. He was sorrowful because of the bird's song. He did not know how to sing, and above all else he loved music.

Of course you little people must know that this was ever so many years ago, long before nightingales knew how to sing.

"Oh, if I could but sing," moaned the nightingale. "Oh, if I only could."

Then he sat in silence on the maple branch and thought and thought. At last the brook sang ever out. At first the nightingale did not notice the song. Then of a sudden it came to him and he cocked his funny feathered head and listened. "Oh, how beautiful," he murmured.

It was such a beautiful song! In a moment, he did not know why, but he found himself humming it. His heart leaped with joy. All that day he sat rehearsing the song as the brook rushed by and as night settled down and the moon peeped down through the trees, he flew to the highest tree in the forest and opening wide his throat poured forth a song such as the woodland had never heard before.

Do you wonder that today the nightingale is the most wonderful song-bird of all?

No Chance! "Why don't you pick out some nice girl in your set and marry her?" "You don't know the girls in our set—they do the picking out!"—New York Telegram.

America's Big Sixteen-inch Gun. No battleship yet built could stand up for half an hour against the fire of the latest United States garrison artillery sixteen-inch gun, let alone their fourteen-inch. The sixteen-inch gun, though slow in firing, can hurl a projectile weighing twenty-four hundred pounds a distance of twenty miles or more. The latest naval gun—thirteen and a half inch, which has not yet been placed aboard any ship in commission, can only throw a projectile weighing twelve hundred and fifty pounds, and the twelve-inch guns with which the Dreadnoughts are armed, a projectile weighing eight hundred and fifty pounds.—Alexander G. McCallan, in the Atlantic.
